FILE CLAIMS IN STATE PETITION FOR SCHOOL AID

County Asking $20,000 for Maintenance of Rural Schools for Year.

INDEPENDENT SCHOOLS IN

Claims Filed With Swaffar and Application With State School Board.

Approximately $20,000 will be asked for the maintenance of weak rural schools of Pontotoc county in the claims filed with the county treasurer, D. W. Swaffar, and in the application to the state school department.

School board members in the school districts petitioning aid have been invading the office of County Superintendent A. Floyd for the past two days making claims for sufficient funds to continue the school term in their district for the scheduled time.

Fourteen schools districts in Pontotoc county are included in the claim for state aid. Two independent schools in the county are also included in the list of petitioners for aid. The claims of independent schools boost the amount over $5,000.

Filed With Swaffar.

Claims of separate school board members in each district petitioning aid have been filed with County Treasurer Swaffar. Claims will then be filed by Swaffar to the state auditor for further action. The state board of education will also be supplied with the application blanks filled in by the county school board members and put their official okay on the petition for state financial aid.

County Superintendent Floyd feels that all required data should be in the hands of state authorities by the end of the week and necessary steps taken by the county in securing sufficient aid in carrying out the required school terms in the county.

Seven Schools Close.

Seven schools in the county were closed in January and February because of the exhaustion of the school fund in their districts. These schools have been closed until recently when they were practically assured by state authorities that aid would be granted that schools could be opened pending the granting of the appropriation.

Many schools in the county have not closed down, which seek state aid under the provision. While arrangements were under way in these instances for obtaining funds to carry on school work, they would be placed under a financial handicap through that action where state aid was actually needed.

Examinations for Rural Schools to Be Held April 12

Regular eighth grade examinations will be held over the county April 12 and 13, according to an announcement of A. Floyd, county superintendent.

Examinations were first scheduled for April 13 and 14 but were advanced because of the county track meet being held on that date.

Examinations will be held at the following schools in the county: New Bethel, Colbert, Oakman, Lovelady, Lulu, Ahlosa, Owl Creek, Union Valley, Frisco, Pleasant Hill, Rocky Chapel, Blue Mound, Franks, Pittsburg, Laxton, Bebee, Egypt, Maxwell, Gally, Wilson, Center, Latta, Pickett, Sunshine, Sheep Creek, Jesse, Black Rock and Summers Chapel.

No Action Taken Against Students In Norman Parade

(By the Associated Press)
NORMAN, March 29.—No action will be taken against approximately 2,500 students of the University of Oklahoma who "cut" classes and paraded in a demonstration against local business men and legislators who opposed the appropriations in the institutional bill to establish a branch of the medical school at Oklahoma City. This announcement was made by Stratton D. Brooks, president of the university, who added that the students were "voicing their natural indignation at the action of certain citizens of Norman who had sought to take into their hands the future of the university."

RUSSIANS TO CONSIDER PRELATES LIFE APPEAL

(By the Associated Press)
MOSCOW, March 29 (2:30 p.m.)—The appeal for clemency for the Catholic prelates under death sentence will be considered at the first meeting of the central executive committee to be held either tomorrow or next week, the government announced today. Meanwhile the temporary suspension of the sentence will stand and the men will remain in prison pending further action.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—According to reports a protest has been made by the state department against the execution of the two high officials of the Catholic church at Moscow, the communication being sent to the soviet government through the American ambassador at Berlin.

It was stated that the American government had taken this step "to give expression humanitarian instincts of the American people."

ASK HENDERSON OF THOMAS CASE

Think Prewett Murderer May Know Something of Thomas Death

(By the Associated Press)

STILLWATER, Okla., March 29.—The sheriff of Payne county left today for McAlester to question Arthur Henderson, now in the state penitentiary awaiting execution, concerning the death of John Thomas, a Quay merchant whose body was found late yesterday near Ripley. Henderson was sentenced to die in the electric chair on pleading guilty at Chickasha to the charge of murdering W. H. Prewett, traveling salesman of Oklahoma City.

Due to the similar circumstances in the Thomas killing, authorities expressed the belief that Henderson had something to do with the death of the Quay merchant. However, finger prints found on Thomas' car do not correspond to those of Prewett's slayers authorities say.

Both Prewett and Thomas disappeared last January. Prewett's body was found near Blanchard on January 22. A short time later his auto was recovered in Texas resulting in the capture of Henderson and several members of his band. Henderson admitted firing one shot into the Oklahoma City man's body, but said other men participated in the slaying.

Thomas disappeared January 10. Three days later his auto was found, but no trace of him was found until late yesterday when it was found in a deep ravine where it had been dragged and dumped by the murderers. A bullet hole was found in the back of his head.

Consolidation for New Bethel School With Tyrola Fails

The election for the consolidation of the New Bethel and Tyrola schools into a consolidated district school again failed Tuesday with a final vote of 83 to 50.

Regardless of the failure of the consolidation proposition for the New Bethel and Tyrola schools, Superintendent Floyd declares that high school work will be given at both places under a provision of the election.

Consolidation vote has been cast for these schools on several occasions.

Coal Company is Sued for Large Damage Charges

(By the Associated Press)
MCALISTER, March 29.—Walter Munford has sued the Hartshorne Coal Co. for $78,320 for alleged injuries sustained by Munford in Mine No. 40 January 6, 1917, when a string of coal cars at terrific speed ran him down in the yards of the mine.

One leg was amputated as a result of his injuries. This he claims in his petition caused his total disability which he values at $53,320. The balance of $25,000 is claimed as punitive damages. This is the largest suit filed here in several years against a coal company.

Chicago Society Girl Weds Heir To Lumber King's $300,000,000

(By Central Press.)
CHICAGO, March 29.—Will the smiles of Fortune which constantly beamed on Frederick Weyerhaeuser sr., made him the lumber king of the northwest and enabled him to amass a fortune of $300,000,000 follow his grandson, Frederick III, and turn his hasty marriage into a lifetime of golden happiness?

Frederick III is sure that it will, very, very sure.

Windy City society hasn't yet recovered from the shock it suffered when Frederick III and Miss Vivian O'Gara, society favorite here were married less than three hours after their engagement was announced.

The marriage was hushed, it is said, because the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. O'Gara, planned to take her abroad with them and the young couple flatly refused to be separated for even a few months.

The wedding was a quiet affair. Only the bride's parents and Mr. and Mrs. John P. Weyerhaeuser, Tacoma, Wash., parents of the groom, and a few intimate friends of the families were present when the ceremony was performed.

But to come back to the golden spoon angle.

When Weyerhaeuser, sr., died in 1914, he was head of the so-called "Weyerhaeuser Syndicate" and left an estate of something over $300,000,000. Now fortunes of this size have a mean habit of growing by leaps and bounds and just plain jumps and as a result it is estimated by some that the Weyerhaeuser estate now is greater than that of the Rockefellers though not quite so well advertised.

The senior Weyerhaeuser had but three sons and so it can readily be seen that the share of young Frederick III will be quite enough to keep the wolf away from the door for some little time to come. "We'd be just as happy without a dime," the honeymooners told reporters who interviewed them after the ceremony.

"And I'm luckier than my grandfather ever dared to be," added young Weyerhaeuser smiling real newlywedlike at his bride.

WOMAN IN TEXAS SHOOTING TRACED

Believe Involved In An Attempt to Slay Man
At Tulsa.

(By the Associated Press)

TULSA, March 29.—Mrs. Goldie White, who shot and killed a man in Fort Worth yesterday, is believed to be the same one who shot W. R. Welner, a farmer here April 25, 1922. She fired once, wounding Welner as he stood on a busy downtown street then surrendered to the first policeman who came along, telling him that she had made a mistake, having taken Welner for another man who had been following her.

Welner, who was not seriously wounded, said he had never seen her before. He did not prosecute and county officers turned her over to a couple near Broken Arrow who said they were friends of her family and would look after her. Her protectors said she suffered from hallucinations brought on by trouble.

The woman has been married twice, both husbands dying. She had been left $30,000 by her second husband, P. T. White of El Centro, Texas. She has not been seen here since the shooting of Welner.

The shooting of Radal is thought to be the result of a bootlegger plot. He died at 3 o'clock this morning. He was never conscious from the time he was shot.

PARIS PAUSES TO PAY TRIBUTE TO BERNHARDT

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS, March 29.—The body of Sarah Bernhardt was laid to rest in the tomb prepared in the cemetery Pere le Chaise this afternoon after a simple funeral service at the St. Francis de Sales church. It was taken through the streets crowded with admirers of the actress.

PARIS, March 29.—Paris paused today to pay a final measure of tribute to the great Sarah Bernhardt. Crowds gathered at the church of St. Francis de Sales for the service and at the cemetery Pere le Chaise where they brought in profusion flowers she had requested.

Bernhardt's body rests in the rosewood casket that she ordered 30 years ago. On the breast of her white dress was the cross of the Legion of Honor while about her neck was a gold framed likeness of her son Maurice.

The ceremony at the church was the wish that there should be no eulogies. The vault that received her body was also free from display, on the front being the one word "Bernhardt."

Money and Men Disappear

(By the Associated Press)

MCALISTER, March 29.—Two young Russians, about 25 or 26 years of age are being sought having disappeared from here following their disappearance from Hartshorne where they pursued an ardent, but unsuccessful courtship of Anna Zuzula, 17, daughter of, Walter Zuzula, a leader in the Russian settlement in that city around the only orthodox church in Oklahoma.

After a few days of their courtship they learned where the lifetime savings of the girl's father were hidden. The $1,500 disappeared Wednesday simultaneous with the disappearance of the two Russians. Neither Zuzula nor his daughter know the names of the men. Well dressed and speaking the mother tongue of Zuzula, they said they had come from Little Rock to hunt work in the mines.

BLOWOUT OF GAS LINE HAS TOLL

Two Men Injured When Gas
Coupling Breaks and Causes Explosion.

A blowout on the gas line of the American Oil and Refining Company early this morning resulted in the injury of Arthur Floyd and Louis Petty and a weak gas pressure in the city for two or three hours.

According to information given out at the office of the company here, the young men were working on the line when the pipe burst and blew one of them out of the ditch. The cause of the explosion has not been ascertained.

Dr. I. L. Cummings, who treated the men, said that Mr. Floyd was badly blistered by gravel and dirt having been blown against him. Mr. Petty, he reported, was not badly injured.

The accident occurred about three miles north of the city in section 8-4-6, near the Katy tracks.

W. B. Skirvin, Jr., local manager of the producing company, after checking up the cause of the accident, said it was caused by a defective expansion coupling and that it was in no wise the fault of the men. The coupling had been held in place by the earth over it. As soon as the dirt was removed, the pressure of the gas blew the coupling out.

W., because he no longer agreed with its policy and program.

OIL PRODUCTION SHOWS LARGE WEEK INCREASE

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 29.—Daily average gross production of crude oil in the United States increased 39,450 barrels for the week ending March 24, the total being 1,846,600 as compared with 1,807,150 for the preceding week, according to the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute. The daily production east of the Rocky mountains was 1,181,600 as compared with 1,177,150, an increase of 4,450.

Oklahoma-Kansas daily average gross production was 500,200 a decrease of 600.

Oklahoma production in the Osage Nation was 98,700 against 102,350; Tonkawa 83,200 against 80,000; Lyons-Quinn 8,350 against 9,000. The output of the Bristol field was 55,150 against 56,100.

LIQUOR MAKERS SLAIN IN FIGHT

Kentuckians Killed After Firing on Possemen
Out for Arrest.

(By the Associated Press)

HARLAN, Ky., March 29.—County officers and possemen who returned today from the mouth of Beech Creek gave an account of a desperate last stand by the "Strongmen" and a battle in which three men and one woman were killed. The dead are Deputy Kelly Walker, Isaac and George Strong, and Mrs. George Strong.

Carrying a warrant for the arrest of Isaac Strong on charges of liquor law violations, 22 possemen arrived at the Strong home Wednesday. As Walker advanced towards the house a hidden marksman fired on him. He staggered back and as he ran for cover a second bullet struck him in the head. The posse concentrated a fire from their high powered rifles on the house from behind trees and ledges. As the steel jacketed bullets tore their way through the building the fire of the defenders became desultory and finally ceased. When the officers entered the house the two men and Mrs. Strong were dead. The woman, according to the officers, was found with repeating rifle clutched in her stiffening fingers.

From their hiding place under the bed five children of Isaac Strong crawled out after being reassured by the officers. They had escaped any injury from the hail of bullets which killed their parents.

Two stills were found in well protected spots back of the house and were destroyed together with 700 gallons of beer.

The Strong brothers, officers say, have long been regarded as desperate characters and persistent violators of the law.

OIL NEWS

The American Oil and Refining Company is drilling at 2272 in the well north of the city in section 16-4-6.

Oil men who live here and others who make the city from time to time are talking the effect of a bridge across the Canadian river near Byng or Francis. They say that if a bridge was in use across this river many of the oil men who will operate in the Seminole county fields would prefer to live in Ada. They point out that Ada has the best water in the state, a good system of city schools and a teachers college and other advantages which would make it desirable to have their families here.

That the new Carter-Lowrey well in section 32-5-5, near Bebee, will be drilled deeper was almost assured this afternoon by an agreement between Roy Carter, who arrived in the city Wednesday night, and local parties who are interested in the matter.

Final details had not been worked out late this afternoon, but it is believed no difficulties are now in the way. There are some details yet to be ironed out, however.

ADJOURNMENT OF LEGISLATURE IS NOW POSTPONED

Last Minute Action of Senate Puts off
Adjournment.

HOUSE IN UPROAR

Walton Indicates Little Chance of Special Session.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 29.—The adjournment of the Ninth legislature set for noon today at the last minute when both houses adopted resolutions setting the date later in the week.

A resolution originated in the senate setting 6 p. m. Friday as the time. The house amended it making noon Saturday the final hour and sent the resolution back to the senate for concurrence at the opening of the afternoon session.

The house was in a feverish mood when the resolution arrived from the senate. A number of extra sergeants at arms were in the chamber. Speaker Gibbons stated that a case of whiskey had been discovered in a committee room and ordered that they be put on duty. Several former policemen of Oklahoma City were on the floor, but each denied being there other than as a spectator.

"I object to these armed men on the floor," declared Representative Stovall of Choctaw, and urged that members conduct themselves in an orderly manner.

"The sergeants at arms are not armed," Gibbons replied. The speaker gave the names of the extra officers as Hugh Haggard, Buck Garrett, Jess Kendall and C. C. York.

The speaker later explained that some had been armed, but that he had requested them to leave their guns in his desk. He added: "The only guns in the chamber are in the pockets of members," and indicated that he was informed that several members were armed.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 29.—The last grind of the Ninth legislature began today with the speaker's bonus measure before the senate and a number of senate bills up for final action in the house. The start of the last day's session found both the institutional and departmental appropriation bills in conference.

The possibility of a special session to take up matters not passed on by the present session was removed with a statement last night from the governor's office that governor Walton does not intend to call an extra session of the legislature "unless some extraordinary emergency arises to justify it," it was added.

United Effort to Be Made to Find Keenan Murderer

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 29.—A united search for the murderer of Dorothy Keenan is for the first time to be made since the young woman's body was found two weeks ago. The police and district attorney's office having started today in a joint effort, retracing each step already taken by each in the separate investigations, every person already examined to be recalled for further questioning by the combined forces. The investigation will begin anew, the officials said, indicating that the individual stores must be retold and rechecked.

AUSTRIA STRIKES FOR FIRM BASIS

More Accomplished in Past Year in Rebuilding Her Finances.

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON.—More has been accomplished to place Austria on a sound financial basis in the past few months than could have been done in 50 years without outside aid. The League of Nations has accomplished this, and the result of its efforts have been called miraculous by the leading financial experts of Europe. The Austrian committee of the league, reporting recently to the general council, made these statements.

Not only has the money of the country been stabilized, but it has been possible to arrange for the floating of an external loan, 93 per cent of which is covered by government guarantees and the remaining seven per cent to be provided by other nations. London financial houses have expressed the opinion that the loan could be raised within a very short time, and virtually all of it in England.

It is an important fact that, in addition to facilitating the loan, the allied powers and certain of Austria's neighbors are entering into commercial agreements with her designed to end the fatal isolation which has been in force since the war.

The Austrian chancellor, Dr. Seipel, said recently that the attempt to restore his country's economic life would have been doomed to failure at the outset if undertaken by any organization other than the League of Nations. He cited as proof of returning confidence the fact that more than 90,000,000 gold crowns had been raised internally during the last five months. Not a fraction of that sum would have been subscribed had not the hopes of the people been raised by the work done at Geneva.

The newspapers of New York require the annual cutting of 42,000 acres of timber to produce enough pulp for paper.

ZIMMERMAN CLASS ENTERTAINS AT M. E. CHURCH

About fifty members of the Zimmerman Class met in the parlors of the Methodist church Tuesday night for a social hour. Unique methods were used by the committee in charge to defray the expenses. Every member visited the tent in which presided the "Greatest Living Poet" in the person of Edgar Allen Poe. Upon payment of five cents each member was provided with a paper Easter egg upon which Edgar Allen inscribed the name.

Kisses were then sold at five cents each. Each kiss contained a question which served to find a partner to go through the dungeon.

A very enjoyable program followed. Little Juanita Strickland gave two excellent readings. The College Quartette sang three numbers. Mary Jane Blankenship gave a piano solo. Mrs. E. H. Nelson read two interesting numbers and Little Eudeana Blankenship recited after some coaxing.

A contest in which the members were blindfolded and placed eggs in a basket was won by Mrs. T. K. Treadwell. The prize was a large Easter egg, containing many small candy eggs.

Brick ice cream and angel food cake were served after which Reverend J. H. Ball made a short talk. This is the sixth entertainment given by the class during the past year.

COLLEGE NOTES

Opening of the annual contest for the election of the May Queen was announced in assembly at the college this morning. Following the announcement the classes gathered separately and selected candidates for the position. Considerable interest is expected to be manifested this year.

T. K. Treadwell, business manager of the Pesagi, announced that today would be the last opportunity to make sure of getting a Pesagi as the annual council plans to print very few extra copies. The staff expects to begin the printing of the year book soon, probably next week, in an effort to have the books ready for distribution before the end of the school term.

"Shore they're behind a crust or have gone down into a rut," suggested Ladd. "They'll show again in a minute. Look sharp, boys, for I'm fingerin' Rojas 'il spread his men."

From time to time the rangers looked inquiringly at Gale. The field glass, however, like the naked sight, could not catch the slightest moving object out there upon the lava. A long hour of slow, mounting suspense wore on.

"Shore it's all goin' to be as queer as the Yaqui," said Ladd.

Indeed, the strange men, the silent action, the somber character of the Indian had not been without effect upon the minds of the men. Then the weird, desolate, tragic scene added to the vague sense of mystery. And now the disappearance of Rojas' band, the long wait in the silence, the boiling certainty of invisible foes crawling, circling closer and closer, lent to the situation a final touch that made it unreal.

"I'm reckonin' there's a mind behind them Greasers," replied Jim. "Or maybe we ain't done Rojas credit. . . . If somethin' would only come off!"

That Lash, the coolest, the most provocingly nonchalant of men in times of peril, should begin to show a nervous strain was all the more indicative of a subtle pervading unreality.

"Boys, look sharp!" suddenly called Lash. "Low down to the left—maybe three hundred yards. See, along by them seams of lava—behind the choyas. First off I thought it was a sheep. But it's the Yaqui! . . . Crawl in swift as a lizard! Can't you see him?"

It was a full moment before Jim's companions could locate the Indian. Flat as a snake, Yaqui wound himself along with incredible rapidity. His advance was all the more remarkable for the fact that he appeared to pass directly under the dreaded choyas. Sometimes he paused to lift his head and look.

"Shore he's headin' for that high place," said Ladd. "He's going slow now. There's stopped behind some choyas. He's gettin' up—no, he's kneelin' . . . Now what the h—!"

"Laddy, take a peek at the side of that lava ridge," sharply called Jim. "I guess maybe somethin' ain't comin' off. See? There's Rojas an' his outfit climbin'. Don't make out no hosses."

"Dick, use your glass an' tell us what's doin'." I'll watch Yaqui an' tell you what his move means."

Clearly and distinctly, almost as if he could have touched them, Gale had Rojas and his followers in sight. They were toiling up the rough lava on foot.

"They're almost up now," Gale was saying. "There! They halt on top. I see Rojas. He looks wild. By—! fellows, an Indian! It's a Papago. Belding's old herder! . . . The Indian points—this way—then down. He's showing Rojas the lay of the trail."

"Boys, Yaqui's in range of that bunch," said Jim, swiftly. "He's raisin' his rifle slow—Lord, how slow he is! . . . He's covered someone. Which one can't say. But I think he'll pick Rojas."

"The Yaqui can shoot. He'll pick Rojas," added Gale, grimly.

"Rojas—yes—yes!" cried Thorne, in passion of suspense.

"Not on your life!" Ladd's voice cut in with scorn. "Gentlemen, you can gamble Yaqui'll kill the Papago. That traitor Indian knows these sheep haunts. He's tellin' Rojas—"

A sharp rifle shot rang off.

"Laddy's right," called Gale. The Papago's hit—his arm falls. There, he tumbles."

Good Friday Service

The Good Friday service at St. Luke's Episcopal church tomorrow will be a memorial of the three hours' agony of Christ on the Cross. It will begin at twelve noon and last until three p. m., consisting of meditations on the seven words or sentences spoken by Christ during that time. These words will be taken up in order at 12:25, 12:50, 1:10, 1:35, 2:00, 2:20 and 2:45. Those attending are asked to come just before these stated times. Opportunity will be given for withdrawal at the end of each period. The public is cordially invited to be present for at least one portion of the service.

The offering will go to the support of Christian work and relief of suffering in Palestine and Constantinople. The women of the church are also asked to make their united offering at this service.

Services Easter Day will be at eight and eleven a. m.

MICHIGAN GRADUATE PRESIDES OVER JAPANESE LOWER HOUSE

(By the Associated Press)
TOKIO—A graduate of the University of Michigan, Mr. Gizo Kasuya, now presides over the Lower House of the Diet, having been elected speaker in succession to Mr.

More shots rang out. Yaqui was seen standing erect firing rapidly at the darting Mexicans. For all Gale could make out no second bullet took effect. Rojas and his men vanished behind the bulge of lava. The Yaqui deliberately backed away from his position. He made no effort to run or hide. Presently he turned and came straight toward the position of the rangers, sheered off perhaps a hundred paces below it, and disappeared in a crevice. Plainly his intention was to draw pursuers within rifle shot.

Another wait set in then, and judging by the more direct rays of the sun and a receding of the little shadows cast by the choyas, Gale was of the opinion that it was a long wait. But it seemed short. Gale had the upper position, farthest to the right, and therefore was best shielded from possible fire from the higher ridges of the rim, some three hundred yards distant. Jim came next, well hidden in a crack. The positions of Thorne and Ladd were most exposed. They kept sharp lookout over the uneven rampart of their hiding-place.

Suddenly the dead stillness was rent by a shot, clear and stinging, close at hand. It was from a rifle, not a carbine. With startling quickness a cry followed—a cry that pierced Gale—it was so thin, so high-keyed, so different from all other cries. It was the involuntary human shriek of death.

"Yaqui's called out another pardner," said Jim Lash, laconically.

Carbines began to crack. The reports were quick, light, like sharp spats without any ring. Gale made out round spots, dark against the background of red, and in front of them leaped out small tongues of fire. Ladd's 405 began to "spang" with its beautiful sound of power. Thorne was firing, somewhat wildly, Gale thought. Then Jim Lash pushed his Winchester over the rim under a choya, and between shots Gale could hear him singing: "Turn the lady, turn—turn the lady, turn! . . . Forward an' back! . . . Turn the lady, turn! . . . Gale got into the fight himself, not so sure that he hit any of the round, bobbing objects he aimed at, but growing sure of himself as action liberated something forced and congested within his breast.

Then over the position of the rangers came a hail of steel bullets. Those that struck the lava hissed away into the crater; those that came biting through the choyas made a sound which resembled a sharp ripping of silk. Bits of cactus stung Gale's face, and he dreaded the flying thorns more than he did the flying bullets.

"Hold on, boys," called Ladd, as he crouched down to reload his rifle. "Save your shells. The Greasers are spreadin' on us, some goin' down below Yaqui, others movin' up for that high ridge. When they get up there I'm d—d if it won't be hot for us. There ain't room for us to hide here."

Ladd raised himself to peep over the rim. Shots were now scattering, and all appeared to come from below. A volley of shots from a different angle was followed by the quick ring of steel bullets striking the lava all around Gale. His first idea, as he heard the projectiles sing and hum and whine away into the air, was that they were coming from above him. He looked up to see a number of low, white and dark knobs upon the high point of lava. They had not been there before. Then he saw little, pale, leaping tongues of fire. As he dodged down he distinctly heard a bullet strike Ladd. At the same instant he seemed to hear Thorne cry out and fall, and Lash's boots scrape rapidly away.

Ladd fell backward still holding the 405. Gale dragged him into the shelter of his own position, and dreading to look at him, took up the heavy weapon. It was with a kind of savage strength that he gripped the rifle; and it was with a cold and deadly intent that he aimed and fired. The first Greaser huddled low, let his carbine go clattering down, and then crawled behind the rim. The second and third jerked back. The fourth seemed to flop up over the crest of lava. A dark arm reached for him, clutched his leg, tried to drag him up. It was in vain. Wildly grasping at the air the bandit fell, slid down a steep shelf, rolled over the rim, to go hurtling down out of sight.

"Shore—I'm d—n glad—them Greaswith his glass. The two fleehz figures halted—turned to fire at Ladd. Gale recognized the foremost one—small, compact, gaudy—Rojas! The bandit's arm was outstretched. Puffs of white smoke rose, and shots rapped out. When Ladd went down Rojas threw his gun aside and with a wild yell bounded over the lava. His companion followed.

A tide of passion, first hot as fire, then cold as ice, rushed over Gale when he saw Rojas take the trail toward Mercedes' hiding-place. The little bandit appeared to have the sure-footedness of a mountain sheep. The Mexican following was not so sure or fast. He turned back. Gale heard the trenchant bark of the 405. Ladd was kneeling. He shot again—again. The retreating bandit seemed to run full into an invisible obstacle, then fell lax, inert, lifeless. Rojas sped on unmindful of the spurts of dust about him. Yaqui, high above Ladd, was also firing at the bandit. Then both rifles were emptied. Rojas turned at a high break in the trail. He shook a defiant hand, and his exulting yell pealed faintly to Gale's ears. About him there was something desperate, magnificent. Then he clambered down the trail.

Ladd dropped the 405, and rising, gun in hand, he staggered toward the bridge of lava. Before he had crossed it Yaqui came bounding down the slope, and in one splendid leap he cleared the fissure. He ran beyond the trail and disappeared on the lava above. Rojas had not seen this sudden, darting move of the Indian.

Gale wondered, fearfully, what had become of Lash. Presently, when Rojas came out of the cracks and rifts of lava there might be a chance of disabling him by a long shot. His progress was now slow. But he was making straight for Mercedes' hiding-place. What was it leading him there—an eagle eye, or hate, or instinct?

Why did he go on when there could be no turning back for him on that trail? Ladd was slow, heavy, staggering on the trail; but he was relentless. Only death could stop the ranger now. Surely Rojas must have known that when he chose the trail. From time to time Gale caught glimpses of Yaqui's dark figure stealing along the higher rim of the crater. He was making for a point above the bandit.

Discovery of Gold on Farm Lands in Missouri Reported

(By the Associated Press)
EXETER, Mo., March 29.—A number of leases in southeastern Missouri have been sold in the last few weeks as the result of the discovery of gold, silver, copper and zinc on the farm of G. S. Johnson, near here.

About a year ago, while drilling a well, a golden colored rock about ten feet thick, and said to have been rich in copper was found by workmen. Beneath this rock, it was stated, another of a greyish hue, was found. Mineralogists examined it and found it to contain silver. Johnson pulverized the rock and from sixteen ounces of ore extracted about an ounce of metal.

Gold also has been found in the well, but according to Johnson, in insufficient quantities to send it away to be smelted. It is planned, however, to construct a large blast furnace and smelter here.

Johnson has leased the property to a company, and a shaft has been lowered to a depth of 70 feet. Assays of the ore are being made by the Government Bureau of Mines.

It Looked as If the Day Was Favoring His Side.

ance. It looked as if the day was favoring his side. Then Thorne, coming partly to consciousness, engaged Gale's care. The cavalryman stirred and moaned, called for water, and then for Mercedes. Gale held him back with a strong hand, and presently he was once more quiet.

Suddenly harsh, prolonged yells brought Gale to his feet. Far down the trails where the crater rims closed in the deep fissure he saw moving forms. They were three in number. Two of them ran nimbly across the lava bridge. The third staggered far behind. It was Ladd. He appeared hard hit. He dragged at the heavy rifle, which he seemed unable to raise. The yells came from him. He was calling the Yaqui.

Gale's heart stood still momentarily. Here, then, was the catastrophe! He hardly dared sweep that fissure

Increase of Airplanes in French Defense is Matter Of Worry to Great Britain

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON.—Britain's weakness in air defence again occupies public attention, and the government is being urged to give serious and immediate attention to the strengthening of that arm of England's fighting forces. In an article in the Daily Telegraph Major C. C. Turner, a well known air expert, compares Britain's air equipment with that of France and declares that the British "are incredibly weak in this respect, considering their geographical situation and their responsibilities."

Major Turner proceeds to give some interesting figures respecting France's growing airplane resources, and says France easily is mistress of the air of the world. "That country," he says, "according to authoritative information available in Paris, will have a total of 220 air squadrons by the end of the present year. This means 2,200 air planes in the first line, with proportionate reserves and with the necessary transport, medical and other auxiliary services. The French government is actuated by the consideration that the strategic situation of France makes her more open to attack by land and sea than any other western power, and it feels therefore that as her military power diminishes it is necessary that her air power be increased."

France's war reserve in the air service, Major Turner continues, is about 4,800 airplanes of various types, with the necessary means of supply and maintenance. "In the eleven months ended Nov. 30, 1922," he writes, "French airplane manufacturers turned out 3,300 machines, including a few required for export."

The total number of British active air squadrons is thirty-two, of which the greater number are abroad. This makes a deplorable showing as against France's more than 200 squadrons."

The British expert then says that aerial warfare as conducted in 1914-1918 was child's play compared with what it will be in the future. "We know," he remarks gravely, "that the British fleet, no matter how preponderant on the sea, cannot save our homes from the power that strikes swiftly from the sky. We ought to ask ourselves whether we can be defended against this new power, as formerly we kept our shores inviolable. Could the people endure the strain of bombardment from the air and the constant fear of it? Here may lie our most vulnerable point; and at it an enemy would strike first, hoping at small cost to himself to weaken our resolve and paralyze our mind and arm."

There is no imminent danger of war, but no man can be sure of peace even five years ahead. Before 1914 we were content with our small army, knowing that at the worst, we should have time to create new armies. That assurance has gone forever. We shall not have time, for within a few hours of the rupture of peace our homes, workshops, transports and munition factories would be attacked.

"True, at the moment, there is only one power that could strike at us through the air, and that power is France, happily our ally. But who can say what changes in the distribution of air power and in friendships may not occur within the next few years?"

A million pounds sterling in subsidies for commercial air service will be paid to an air transport company if parliament accepts the recommendations of the air ministry.

The government has already given large subsidies to various companies operating air passenger lines to the continent under plans that have proved unsuccessful, as they allowed competition among the companies at the expense of the government.

The new plan provides that the government will undertake to furnish a million pounds, to be allotted over a space of ten years, to any firm with a capital of a million pounds and which is capable of developing commercial aviation.

The government will allow the company complete control of its own development, requiring only that all profits over ten per cent be equally divided between the government and the shareholders.

When the million pounds has been repaid, the government will drop all connections with the company.

Several companies are understood to be preparing to bid for the subsidy monopoly if the plan is passed by parliament.

Air liners, able to carry from eight to a hundred passengers across the Atlantic in less than 24 hours, will, it is claimed, become practicable with the use of two 1600-horsepower aeroplane engines being built for the air ministry.

These engines will be the most powerful in the world, and will burn crude oil instead of petrol.

$16,500,000. Cost of a Modern Battleship

LONDON.—The cost of building a first-class battleship in 1914 was approximately 500,000 pounds sterling, or about $2,500,000, but the cost of a similar ship today is about 3,300,000 pounds, or about $16,500,000, according to Commander Eyer-Monsell, parliamentary secretary to the admiralty.

Explaining this increase the expert says: "It must be borne in mind, however, that a modern capital ship embodies features found necessary in the light of war experience which involve a considerably greater tonnage, offensive and defensive armament, and consequently cost."

"It Pays to Swim With the Current"

This is about two spark plugs. At the moment they are lying on the sales manager's desk in the establishment of a large middle-western hardware jobber.

One spark plug bears a name known wherever automobiles are used, the other a name seldom heard.

Both, says the sales manager, are good plugs. On the score of quality they run neck and neck.

"But" he adds, "we are discontinuing this line"—and he holds up the plug of unfamiliar name. "Yes, and our discount on it is larger, too."

"What's wrong with it? Not a thing. It's a good plug—mighty good plug, but—no one knows about it. It isn't advertised—the other one is. The demand is for the advertised make. And we've learned it pays to swim with the current, not against it."

More and more jobbers in every line of business are learning every day that it pays to swim with the current of popular demand.

"Our job," said one jobber, "is to supply markets, not create them. Let the manufacturer make a market for his goods, and we will handle it."

Said another—"Our salesmen carry a catalog with thousands of items in it. They haven't the time to push unadvertised goods. Their work is principally taking orders."

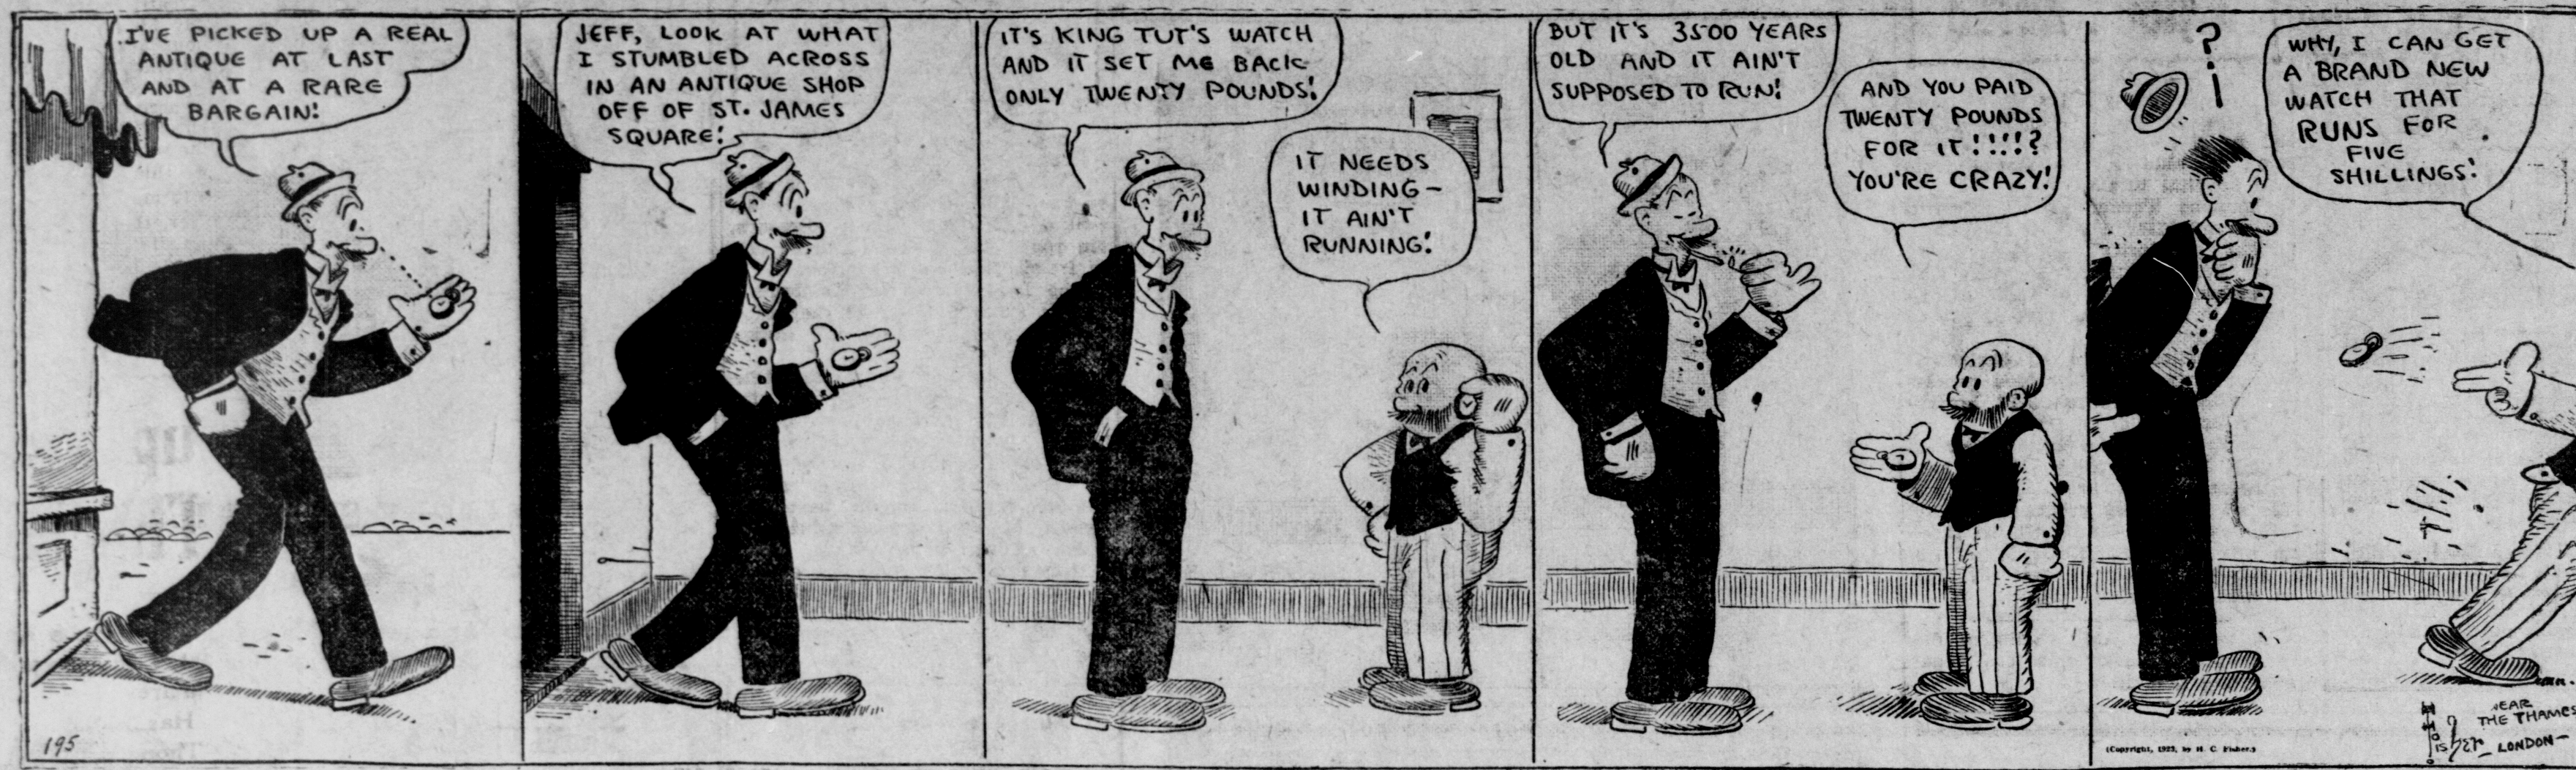

If you go among these wholesalers today to introduce a new product in competition with merchandise nationally advertised, unless the article is exceptional, you will be met everywhere by injunction: "First go out and get a reputation for your goods through advertising."

The wholesaler knows by actual contact with dealers how they value speed of turnover, goods which move with a minimum of effort, goods people know about and ask for.

OHIO IN FIGHT
ON BAN OF JAZZ

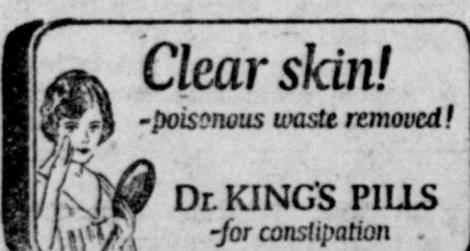

Campaign Started for More Interest in Promoting of Good Music.

(By the Associated Press). COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—A movement, the primary object of which is to educate the public in appreciation of good music, and which the sponsors believe will ultimately sound the death knell to the popularity of jazz, has been started by the Department of Education of Ohio in the form of a music memory contest. A committee, composed of the leading musical men and women of Ohio, chosen by Vernon L. Riegel, State Director of Education, and Mrs. Nellie I. Sharp, State Music Supervisor, has made 20 selections of musical numbers, nine of which are from American composers. In the first section of the contest this list has been given to every school in the state where children in all grades from the fifth to the eighth in the country schools will attempt to learn them so well that they can tell instantly which selection is being played even though only a few bars are executed.

An additional 10 selections are added to this list in the second section of the contest for pupils in elementary schools of villages and cities, while an additional 10 is added, making a list of 40 selections, for high school pupils. These selections are being played in all the schools, theaters, movie picture houses and concerts in the state, and reports to Director Riegel and Mrs. Sharp indicate that hundreds of thousands of school children have entered the contests.

Elimination contests are to be held in each school in the state during the week of April 2 and five pupils from each school will win the honor of representing that unit in the county contests of April 21. At these county contests three pupils in each section, making nine to a county, will be declared winners, and their victory will carry with it the right to represent that county in the state contest to be held here on April 28. Thus more than 600 county winners will try for the supreme honor.

Arcadia Lady Tells of Remarkable Restoration by Tanlac Just To Help Others

"I consider it both a duty and a pleasure to recommend the Tanlac treatment. It has given me better health than I have had in years and I am once more able to attend to my work," declared Mrs. M. E. Swear, well-known proprietress of the general merchandise store at Arcadia, Okla.

"I suffered a long time with stomach trouble, disordered liver, headaches, and had but very little appetite. I was tired and worn out all the time and could get no restful sleep at night. My circulation was not good, my feet were cold as ice, and I finally suffered a nervous breakdown.

"After my first few doses of Tanlac I noticed I was gaining appetite and was less nervous. Then pretty soon my digestion picked up and today I can eat and digest anything, sleep soundly and always feel strong and well. Some of my friends have taken Tanlac on my advice and are well pleased. I think it is a grand medicine."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—adv.

Relics of Indian Life In Ozarks Brought out In Recent Discoveries

(By the Associated Press)

ELK SPRINGS, Mo., March 26.—Shelters beneath overhanging limestone bluffs along the White and Cowskin rivers in the Ozarks of Missouri and Arkansas are today giving up to science the relics of a prehistoric race that inhabited this section upwards of a thousand years ago. The work of excavation is being done near here by an expedition from the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation.

Buried deep in the dry dust of centuries beneath these formations of shelving rock where the ancients made their homes, these relics are being unearthed with no little difficulty. A cloud of powdery dust arises as the workers search the deposits for traces of a civilization that is still unidentified. Use of masks often is necessary. For the present, the ancient people of the region are being referred to by M. B. Harrington, in charge of the expedition, as the Ozark bluff-dwellers. They have not been identified as the ancestors of any modern Indian tribe.

In some of the rock-shelters, particularly on the Cowskin or Elk river, the expedition has found near the surface traces of a different and more modern, but still pre-colonial, Indian race. These Indians, according to Mr. Harrington, probably were the Osages or some related tribe. It is estimated that even these specimens are at least three or four hundred years old. Those left by the spear-throwing bluff-dwellers of the Ozarks, which also have been uncovered, are probably upwards of a thousand years old.

Everything so far found is purely aboriginal. Mr. Harrington explained, not the slightest trace of the white man's handiwork or influence have been discovered. The specimens include baskets, woven textiles, wooden articles, implements of stone and bone and even pottery. Some of the articles no doubt were buried by the ancient dwellers for safe keeping. It is believed by the excavators, while others simply were out and were discarded or lost in the ashes and trash of generations that has accumulated beneath the bluffs. At some places the deposits have been found so well protected by the overhanging rock formation that they are absolutely dry, which has resulted in remarkable preservation.

It was a visit by Mr. Harrington at the home in Seneca, Mo., of Dr. W. C. Barnard, who had one of the largest private collections of Indian relics in existence at that time, that resulted in remarkable preservation. That was in the fall of 1914.

"Among his specimens," said Mr. Harrington, "were a number of pieces of baskets, textile fabrics and wooden articles which gave every evidence of being prehistoric. Knowing that such perishable articles discarded from that period are practically unknown east of Utah and New Mexico, I inquired as to their origin and was surprised to learn that they came from the district along the upper White River, where they had been found in dry deposits beneath overhanging bluffs. I then and there planned to explore some of these rocky bluffs or 'rock shelters,' as they are called by archeologists, but the opportunity did not come until May, 1922, when the present expedition set forth from the museum."

were stopped Sept. 1, 1922 and the expedition returned to New York for the public opening of the museum. It returned to the Ozarks early in January of the present year. The work on White River was completed February 14 when the expedition, now consisting only of Mr. Harrington and Mr. Turbyfill moved its camp to Noel, Mo. It has been working on the Cowskin River ever since, near Noel and Elk Springs.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE FINDS DIFFERENT "DOUBLE-CROSS"

The double cross of Constance Talmadge is a surprising affair and about the only one that runs true to name. It occurs during the Love Boat sequences of "East is West," the big First National attraction which comes to the McSwain Theatre Monday. Constance Talmadge, as Ming Toy is placed for auction. A fat mandarin is her prospective purchaser, but behind her fan she prays that Billy Benson, an American will step forward. When Benson fails her and the madman demands that she show her face she works her double cross. The celestial potentate staggers back from a horror of cross eyes, one looking east, the other west, in the best Ben Turpin fashion.

Her eyes save Ming Toy at that moment, but later, when she is transported to America and installed in Chinatown, San Francisco, her irrepressible orbs cause fresh trouble. She learns to wink. She believes this the customary American salutation. And she winks and winks without stinting at every one she sees. It is a surprising movement. Her right eye twitches up and carries her cheek with it, while her left eye widens and rounds out like a head light. A most expressive gesture—but misconstrued by the secretary of the Chinatown mission who insists that Ming Toy marry and settle down in the best American fashion. That, however, proves to be one of the western habits which Ming Toy cannot acquire too easily, for she clings to a memory of Billy Benson, the American, and cannot appreciate the attentions of Charlie Yong, "fifty-fifty Chinaman," whose dress and speech is American but who still clings to his home land by queue and heart.

Splendid entertainment is promised when Constance Talmadge brings "East is West" in all its eight reels of Oriental glamor and surprise to the McSwain Theatre.

MAIN STREET

Tonight Paris weeps and Ada rejoices.

Everything depicting Paris will be in vogue with the possible exception of champagne, vermouth, vin rouge and a few of those other french national eye-openers.

The Legionnaires are celebrating with a cabaret, the first they have enjoyed since greeting the Statue of Liberty.

Among the new dances for Adaltes, which probably remains familiar to the average private, will be the "crotte glide," since all things should have a tint of military reference, the former serial number carriers should have the benefit of such arrangement by reason of past acquaintance.

It may be hard for some of our prominent buddies to refrain from starting out in a broken "Ma chérie" and struggling for some period over the information for a French telephone number.

At the evening dance, Most every one knows The better the shape, The scarcer the clothes.

Mayor Fisher is tired of warning the good public that chickens must be kept in the family coop.

Good housewives, peaceful pedestrians and ardent reformers have prompted him to action.

Another menace to the chief city magistrate's peace of mind is the fact that people persist in riding their bicycle on sidewalks.

So Mayor Fisher wants to issue the following order:

"After consulting with the city council for some time, I warn the people of Ada that I will enforce the city ordinance against chickens running at large and riding bicycles on sidewalks."

A few years ago, fond parents thought that their daughter had little chance of catching a husband unless they kept her in clothes.

A census taker has been slain. A spinster was asked her age, to which she replied that she had seen twenty-one summer and then he asked her how long she had been blind—exit.

We see nations seething from the turmoil of war.

We see diplomats at outs over international problems.

We feel the temperature racing in July.

We suffer with its decline in January.

We wiggle with uncertainty at a baseball game.

All show unrest—

But what acts of man could typify that condition more than a preacher with twins and a small boy with an unspent dime.

Piggly Wiggly stores are famous now after a fellow by the name of Saunders at Memphis, made millions on the help-yourself plan, which just now reminds us that many banks in the country are operating on Piggly Wiggly basis—the customer uses a gun, a mask and a stick of dynamite.

People are hard hit now, it was discovered through the instance of one family sponsoring two marriageable daughters. The very idea of times being so hard that pa and ma are forced to spend their money for food when there isn't a silk stocking in the house—let the wolf in.

Three Prominent Women Seek Head of D. A. R. Order

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 29.—Interest in the annual congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution to be held here April 16 to 21 is centering in the triennial election of officers with a three-cornered contest on for the office of president-general.

The candidates now in the field to succeed Mrs. George Maynard Minor, whose term expires this year by constitutional limitation, include three prominent members: Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, of Pennsylvania; Mrs. G. Wallace Hanger, of the District of Columbia, and Mrs. William Cumming Story of New York, honorary president-general of the D. A. R.

Tickets have been announced partially by the candidates, and there is every indication of an exciting contest when the 2,000 delegates assemble in Memorial Continental Hall. Officers will serve for three years with the exception of the vice presidents-general, whose terms are only for two years.

The presidents-General of the D. A. R. have included notable American women. Mrs. Benjamin Harrison was the first, accepting the office while first lady of the land. Mrs. Adlai Stevenson and Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks, wives of vice presidents of the United States also, have served in this office. Two picturesque figures will be missing from the convention this year—Mrs. Mary S. Lockwood, known as the "Little Mother of the D. A. R." who died last fall, and Mrs. John Logan, widow of the Civil War general, whose death occurred last month.

Motor traffic is so heavy in London that roadways are now built upon concrete foundations 12 inches thick, instead of six inches, as a few years ago.
